Acknowledgements

The City of Port Phillip respectfully acknowledges the Yalukut Weelam Clan of the Boon Wurrung. Council pays respect to their Elders, both past and present. Council acknowledges and upholds their continuing relationship to the land.

For the Boon Wurrung, and their visitors, the City of Port Phillip, which includes St Kilda, South Melbourne, Port Melbourne, Elsternwick and Elwood, has always been a meeting place.

Aboriginal languages are oral, not written languages. As a result there are often spelling variations of Indigenous names in use in Melbourne in the past and today. For example, there are over 60 variations recorded of 'Boon Wurrung'. The spelling and use of local names today is usually determined by regional protocols with local Aboriginal communities.

Council utilises the spelling of 'Yalukut Weelam' as endorsed by the Victorian Aboriginal Corporation for Languages.

Council would like to acknowledge the support and input of the following organisations during the development of its second Reconciliation Action Plan: Reconciliation Australia, Reconciliation Victoria, Boon Wurrung Foundation, Urban South Local Aboriginal Network, Port Phillip Citizen's for Reconciliation, Star Health, Municipal Association of Victoria, Victorian Local Government Association, LGPro Indigenous Special Interest Group and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community.

The art work, (digitally altered watercolour) represents an overlay of three themes representing the cultural beliefs of the Boon Wurrung:

- The outline of the possum skin cloak - an important cultural item for the Boon Wurrung women who recorded their journey cycles on the inside of the cloak.
- The blue represents the rising of the sea waters and the original path of the Yarra according to the traditional story as retold by Boon Wurrung Arweet Carolyn Briggs.
- The images of the six seasons of the Boon Wurrung, representing the journey cycles of the women.

MAYOR'S MESSAGE

'I am very proud to present the City of Port Phillip Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) (2017-2019). Council's second RAP is our guiding policy document on reconciliation which has been developed in consultation with both Boon Wurrung Traditional Owners and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander citizens of the area, the Port Phillip Citizens for Reconciliation, and the broader community. The plan seeks to realise Council's vision for strengthening its diverse and inclusive community.

We are committed to delivering the City of Port Phillip Reconciliation Action Plan and working with the community and other stakeholders towards reconciliation.

The City of Port Phillip has a long history of acknowledging the dispossession suffered by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. In 1997 it was one of the first local government areas in Australia to offer an apology to members of the Stolen Generation for pain and loss suffered from the child removal policies of various governments. We respect the contribution of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to Australian society.

We value the cultural assets of the Boon Wurrung Traditional Owners, and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community of Port Phillip.

We want both Boon Wurrung Traditional Owners and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander residents of Port Phillip to feel welcome in a culturally safe environment.

Council is committed to contributing to a national reconciliation movement, and the national campaign to 'close the gap' in relation to the life expectancy gap between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and the rest of Australia.

The Reconciliation Action Plan focuses on good relationships, respecting the special contribution of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to Australia, and working together to ensure they have the same life opportunities as other Australians. The City of Port Phillip Reconciliation Action Plan 2017-2019 provides Council with an opportunity to work for meaningful reconciliation.'

City of Port Phillip

STATEMENT OF COMMITMENT

The following statement was first committed to in 1997, and recommitted to in 2012 with the launch of Council's first Reconciliation Action Plan.

'In endorsing the second RAP, Councillors affirm that:

The Council of the City of Port Phillip acknowledges that the Yalukut Weelam clan of the Boon Wurrung language group are the first people of this land and have survived European settlement for more than two centuries.

The City of Port Phillip values its diverse and multicultural community and encourages tolerance and respect for all.

The arrival of Europeans brought massive change to the Australian continent and to its Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. For its part, the City of Port Phillip acknowledges and grieves for the loss by the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples of their land, their children, their health and their lives.

We acknowledge the right of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to live according to their own values and customs and we commit ourselves to respecting Aboriginal sacred sites and significant places.

The Council recognises the valuable contribution to the Port Phillip region made by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and looks forward to a future of mutual respect and harmony.

The Council supports the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples of Australia working together for the development of a formal instrument of reconciliation.'

BOON WURRUNG MESSAGE

We are pleased to acknowledge the commitment of the City of Port Phillip in paying respect to the spirit of this land and its First Peoples - through this they have shown the willingness to honour sacred ground.

It is important for all Victorians to understand and appreciate the history and culture of the Indigenous people of Melbourne, the Kulin People, who have played a significant role in the development of Melbourne, both before and after European arrival.

If we take time to reflect back, it has only been 180 years since Europeans first entered our country, a mere footnote in history. Before this and for thousands of years, our sacred river which we call Bayrayrung (Yarra River) and the great Bay it feeds into, we now call Port Phillip, was called Nairm.

The struggle to preserve our culture and traditions began with our ancestors in the 1830's. One of the most important lessons we should take from this struggle was the way our Elders forged alliances that led to many of the achievements that we take for granted today.

As Australians, while we may have all descended from different clans and language groups, or countries across the world, we can all learn from this lesson.

The word 'welcome' in Boon Wurrung is 'Womin Jeka', and it translates to 'come with purpose'. It is a contract between ourselves as the custodians of this land and visitors to this land, to ensure our laws are adhered to, and guarantee safe passage for those who ask.

According to our tradition, our land has always been protected by our creator Bunjil, who travels as the eagle, and by Waarn, who protects the waterways and travels as a crow.

Bunjil taught the Boon Wurrung to always welcome guests, but he always required the Boon Wurrung to ask all visitors to make two promises:

"To obey the laws of Bunjil; and not to harm the children or the land of Bunjil"

This commitment was made through the exchange of a small bough, dipped in the water and the following phrase.

"Womin jeka mirambeek beek. Boonerwung Nairm derp bordupren uther willam"

Welcome to my country, the land of the great bay of the Boon Wurrung people, our beautiful home.

Arweet Carolyn Briggs,
Boon Wurrung Foundation

OUR VISION FOR RECONCILIATION

The City of Port Phillip is committed to achieving reconciliation between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and the rest of Australian society.

The City of Port Phillip has a vision for a community that not only embraces unity and respect between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and the rest of Australia, but also celebrates that union. We want all Australians to be proud that the oldest continuing human civilisation has called this continent 'home' for over 55,000 years or 1,500 generations.

Council will work towards a community in which the health and wellbeing of the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples is highly valued and strengthened through collaborative and strategic advocacy, policies and programs.

Council will actively support citizens, businesses and community organisations to uphold reconciliation principles in all of their activities and ensure that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have a positive experience of and input into Council's services and facilities.

OUR BUSINESS

Local governments perform the functions and exercise the powers conferred by or under the Local Government Act 1989 for the peace, order and good government of their municipal districts.

In promoting the best interests of the local community, local governments make and enforce local laws and undertake strategic land use planning. Local governments also provide, advocate and develop strategic partnerships to ensure delivery of community infrastructure, facilities and services that reflect the diverse needs of the local community.

The City of Port Phillip was formed in 1994 and is an amalgamation of the former Cities of Port Melbourne, South Melbourne and St Kilda. The planned development of Fishermans Bend and anticipated population growth has seen Port Phillip's boundaries and neighbourhoods redefined. The now nine neighbourhoods of Elwood, Ripponlea, Balaclava, St Kilda, Albert Park, Middle Park, Port Melbourne, Sandridge, Wirraway, Montague, South Melbourne and St Kilda Road make up the Canal, Gateway and Lake wards, each ward is represented by three Councillors.

Council has a workforce of 1,031 employees. Eight Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff are employed across several departments, including four Indigenous policy and project officer positions.

Council staff operate out of three town halls, four community centres, five libraries, seven maternal child health centres, four childcare centres, an Arts and Festivals office and a Council Depot.

The City of Port Phillip is a densely populated, inner suburban area within Melbourne, located on the northern shores of Port Phillip Bay and to the south of Melbourne's central business district. It has an area of 20.62 km².

CITY OF PORT PHILLIP A SNAPSHOT

“Before the arrival of Europeans in 1835, the City of Port Phillip area was managed by the Yalukut Weelam clan of the Boon Wurrung people or language group.

Yalukut Weelam means ‘river home’ or ‘people of the river’. This is an accurate description for a people whose territory was on a flood plain surrounded by water near the mouth of the Yarra River.

The local area has changed vastly since European occupation but it was once a kind of ‘temperate Kakadu’ surrounded by sea, river, creeks, lakes and lagoons. Between the sea and the river was a score of wetlands surrounded by dunes, heath, woodlands, salt marsh and beach.”¹

In terms of European colonisation, Port Phillip is one of the oldest areas of European settlement in Melbourne. Known for its unique urban villages and magnificent heritage buildings, cultural diversity and creative arts, as well as its picturesque foreshore, parks and gardens, the City attracts approximately four million visitors each year².

Several contemporary sites of interest in Port Phillip occupy locations that were first significant to the Boon Wurrung, the First Peoples of Port Phillip. In St Kilda, the Ngargee tree, a River Red Gum, is located in the south east corner of Albert Park between Albert Park Lake and Fitzroy Street at St Kilda Junction. It is the longest living resident with an estimated age of 300-500 years. The tree marks a junction of pre-European walking trails where tracks connected to southern, northern and eastern districts. St Kilda Town Hall sits on a natural spring and was once a Boon Wurrung camp. Also in St Kilda was Euro-Yroke which means the ‘grinding stone place’.

The Esplanade, where weekend markets take place was once a stone quarry. Stone axes were a highly valued tool, universally used by Boon Wurrung men for cutting bark for trees for housing, canoes and containers.

Emerald Hill, now the site of South Melbourne Town Hall, was a significant local site to engage in ceremonies and trade. The Boon Wurrung met at this permanently cleared site every three months and conducted ceremony on full and new moons.

Port Phillip has an estimated resident population of 108,472, 11.51 per cent increase since 2011³. The total identified Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander population of Port Phillip is 283 with many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander residents living in St Kilda, South Melbourne and Port Melbourne⁴. The local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander population is diverse and is made up of Boon Wurrung Traditional Owners, Aboriginal people from regional Victoria, Torres Strait Islander peoples from Queensland and from all states and territories of Australia. Once a working class area, decades of gentrification has seen an increasing proportion of high socio-economic groups residing in Port Phillip. However, low income earners still make up approximately 16 per cent of households.

Proximity to the municipality ensures that Port Phillip is an area in high demand. The physical environment will change as the area continues to experience significant residential development. Substantial growth is anticipated over the next 40 years in the Fishermans Bend Urban Renewal Area on the northern edge of the municipality. The renewal area will eventually accommodate approximately 80,000 residents and 40,000 jobs.

OUR RECONCILIATION ACTION PLAN

The City of Port Phillip’s ongoing commitment to the development of a reconciliation process at the local government level is reflected in the Reconciliation Action Plan 2017-2019.

The Reconciliation Action Plan 2017-2019 (RAP) aligns with direction one of the City of Port Phillip Council Plan ‘We embrace difference, and people belong’ which includes a commitment to:

1.4 C) Protecting and promoting Aboriginal culture and heritage, and continuing reconciliation with our Indigenous community.

The process to develop both the first and second RAP has involved extensive consultation with the Traditional Owners: the Yalukut Weelam of the Boon Wurrung, the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community including those participating in the Urban South Local Aboriginal Network and the broader Port Phillip community including those involved in the Port Phillip Citizens for Reconciliation.

Consultation to develop the RAP was undertaken with Council staff ‘champions’ including members of the Executive Leadership Team, senior managers, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff including the Indigenous Policy Officer, Indigenous Health and Reconciliation Officer, Indigenous Arts Research Officer and Indigenous Arts Festival Producer. These ‘champions’ will play key roles in the RAP’s implementation and are members of the RAP working group.

Council’s second RAP builds on the development and implementation of its first RAP 2012-2015 (see case study on page 13). Drawing on this foundation, the second RAP will enhance Council’s capacity to work with the Traditional Owners and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community.

History of engagement with the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community

Since adopting the Statement of Commitment in 1997 (see p.4), the City of Port Phillip has worked to embed the concept of reconciliation within the organisation.

For many years, Council has provided targeted support for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community activities organised by local community and health organisation such as Inner South Community Health Service (now Star Health), Port Phillip Citizens for Reconciliation, and the Boon Wurrung Foundation.

Since 1994, the City of Port Phillip has celebrated Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts and culture through events and festivals, including We Iri We Homeborn, Bless Your Big Blak Arts, and Yalukit Wilum Ngargee. The City of Port Phillip engaged an Indigenous Arts Officer in 1994 to promote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artistic and cultural practice within the Council and the community.

Originally situated in St Kilda's historic Linden Gallery on Acland Street, the Koori Art Unit, as it was then known, played a vital role in shaping the Council's early relationships with Aboriginal arts and artists.⁵

The Koori Art Unit produced the first We Iri We Homeborn celebrations, for National Aboriginal and Islander Day of Observance Committee (NAIDOC) week that included art and cultural heritage programs encompassing, song, visual art, and community access workshops.

These earlier celebrations have laid the foundations for what have become other celebratory festivals and events within the City of Port Phillip such as the Bless Your (Big) Blak Arts Festivals 2001/2003 and the Yalukit Wilum Ngargee festival that has run annually since 2006.

Finding a voice through engagement with the Yalukit Wilum Ngargee festival, exhibitions such as the CONFINED Indigenous prison art exhibition, have gone on to be regular exhibitions.

In 1997, Council was one of the first local government areas in Australia to apologise to members of the Stolen Generations for the continuing impact of their loss.

Council has also engaged with the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community through a series of Memoranda of Understanding (MOU) in 1998, 2002 and 2008.

In 2010, the Council employed an Indigenous Policy Officer to develop and implement its first Reconciliation Action Plan, as a result of lobbying from Port Phillip Citizens for Reconciliation.

Between 2012 and 2015, Council developed and implemented the first Reconciliation Action Plan guided by the principles of City of Port Phillip's, Social Justice Charter (2011) and the Health and Wellbeing Plan and the Victorian Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities (2006).

In 2014, the City of Port Phillip launched its Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Strategy which included a number of actions including:

- Use of public art opportunities to create and maintain Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander visibility within Council boundaries
- Scope public art opportunities outside of festival program and as part of, or outside of, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander civic occasions
- Work with City of Port Phillip Arts Team to establish a rotation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander works in the collection to be exhibited in Council building spaces
- Provide access to audience and economic development for musicians
- Demonstrate best practice at a national level when dealing with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts and artists

CASE STUDY

City of Port Phillip Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) 2012-2015 outcomes

An outcome of Council's first RAP has been the adoption of an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Protocols Framework by Council staff, developed with the Boon Wurrung Foundation. Alongside regularly reviewed engagement protocols this practice reflects Council's commitment to and understanding of the 'two way learning' principle commonly followed in Australia's Indigenous communities.

Additionally, Council's first RAP achieved a 90 per cent implementation rate. Outcomes included:

- The employment of eight Indigenous employees across several departments in the last three years
- National recognition of the City of Port Phillip at Reconciliation Action Plan Showcase in Canberra in 2013 - only local government body in Australia invited
- State-wide recognition through Victorian Department of Justice Reconciliation Award in 2013
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Employment Policy developed
- Aboriginal Gathering Place research completed and model recognised by Victorian Department of Health and Human Services
- Sorry Business Fund established. The funding is available annually for members of the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community to assist with transport, venue hire for memorials and catering following the passing of a local community member.
- Creation of a cultural walking tour designated by ten Boon Wurrung interpretative signs.
- Publication of an Aboriginal history of Port Phillip book completed by local historian Meyer Eidelsen in conjunction with the Boon Wurrung Foundation and utilised as an educational aid
- Implementation of food security project for the local Aboriginal community to access fruit and vegetables and dry groceries.
- Creation of an Aboriginal-themed mural by Melbourne street artist Adnate at Peanut Farm Reserve in St Kilda
- The naming of two Council-managed childcare centres and one community development program in the Boon Wurrung language - Bubup Nairm, Bubup Wominjeka and Neighbourhood Ngargee.
- The marking of an AFL Indigenous round by the Victorian State League team at Peanut Farm Reserve with a Welcome to Country and a smoking ceremony
- Development of Boon Wurrung keepsake - a ceremonial gum leaf - at City of Port Phillip citizenship ceremonies
- Mentoring local Indigenous youth at regional cultural camps

Ongoing implementation of actions from first RAP

Many of the above initiatives will be maintained in the program of work Council will undertake in the implementation of its second RAP.

FOCUS AREA ONE: RELATIONSHIPS

Working relationships between the City of Port Phillip, Boon Wurrung Traditional Owners, community organisations and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community are the foundation of an effective reconciliation policy framework. Building strong working relationships between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and other Australians is extremely important to the Council. This is achieved by connecting people and sharing experiences.

CASE STUDY

Aboriginal Interpretative Signage Project

To implement Council’s commitment to the reconciliation process between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Australians, this project develops a process of promoting Aboriginal sites of significance via signage and incorporates them into Aboriginal cultural walking trails.

In response to a lack of Aboriginal-themed signage in the City of Port Phillip this project explains and highlights local Aboriginal historical events, places and people. The project was developed and finalised in partnership with the Boon Wurrung Foundation. To enable a welcoming and inclusive community, the design and construction of 10 interpretative signs in St Kilda, South Melbourne, Port Melbourne,

West Beach, Albert Park, Middle Park, Balaclava and Point Ormond fosters an educative and ‘information sharing’ environment which raises awareness of the local Boon Wurrung culture.

The project has had a positive impact on local residents, domestic and international visitors and the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community.

This project supports the delivery of Action 14 of Council’s first Reconciliation Action Plan which commits to “Increase the use of signs in public locations that pay respect to the area’s Traditional Owners -Yalukut Wilam clan of the Boon Wurrung.

FOCUS AREA TWO: RESPECT

Building respect and trust with the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community is important to the City of Port Phillip. Raising awareness of the positive contribution made by First Australians to the City, as well as the history of dispossession of Australia's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, is key in developing trust.

Bubup Nairm Family and Children's Centre

The commitment of the City of Port Phillip to the national reconciliation movement is reflected in the naming of a new Family and Children's Centre in the local Boon Wurrung language.

Council has worked closely with Boon Wurrung Arweet (head of clan) Carolyn Briggs regarding the use of local Aboriginal words to name various buildings in the area. In 2013, Council was seeking a name for the Family and Children's Centre in Carlisle Street in St Kilda.

A name was sought that thematically reflected and identified the new integrated centre as a place for children and families as opposed to the name identifying the location solely ie calling it the St Kilda Family and Children's Centre.

The Boon Wurrung Foundation suggested and endorsed the 'Bubup Nairm Family and Children's Centre' which translates from the Boon Wurrung language, 'Children of Port Phillip Bay'.

In choosing a local Aboriginal name for a mainstream centre, reflected Council's understanding that the use of language and its relationship to land fosters the capacity for self-development, self-reliance and cultural integrity of local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders and all residents of Port Phillip.

Subsequently, Council has named another family and children's centre in Port Melbourne, 'Bubup Womindjeka Family and Children's Centre' which means 'Children Welcome'.

Building on its commitment to use an Aboriginal name for a significant activity, Council is now finalising Boon Wurrung language options for the naming of a new Family and Children's Centre in South Melbourne.

The naming process solidifies a respectful working relationship with the Boon Wurrung Foundation, especially with senior Elder, Arweet Carolyn Briggs, a descendant of the First Peoples of the land on which the centres are located.

FOCUS AREA THREE: OPPORTUNITIES

The vision of the City of Port Phillip is to actively advocate for the needs of the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community, who historically have had a limited voice to express their aspirations. Council will work in partnership with the local community in the development of opportunities and recommendations throughout its decision-making processes.

FOCUS AREA FOUR: TRACKING PROGRESS AND REPORTING

The Reconciliation Action Plan will detail a set of actions to achieve reconciliation principles across a range of departments. Progress against actions will be measured and strategies continually improved. This is important because the City of Port Phillip is committed to being held accountable to the expectations of the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community.
