About this guide

The City of Port Phillip recognises and celebrates diversity and we are committed to inclusion and equity.

Port Phillip has a proud history of inclusion and everyone is welcome here. Multiculturalism is an integral part of our City's history and success, with Station Pier the first landfall in Australia for many new arrivals. One third of Port Phillip's residents were born overseas and this cultural diversity is one of our greatest strengths.

Our City is a place for all members of our community, where people feel supported and comfortable being themselves and expressing their identities. People of all ages, abilities, ethnicities, genders, sexual orientations, languages, cultures and religious beliefs are welcome.

The City of Port Phillip New Residents Directory was created for new migrants and people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds who live, work and study in the Port Phillip area. We spoke to several current residents who arrived in Port Phillip as migrants, refugees and asylum seekers and asked them what information they wished they had known when they arrived in Port Phillip and during their first year. This directory includes what they told us.

The directory is also available in Hindi, Spanish, Portuguese, Arabic and Mandarin (simplified) on the City of Port Phillip Multicultural Community page¹.

What is local government?

The City of Port Phillip is a local government area that represents residents from Port Melbourne through to Elwood in Melbourne. You can find a map of the area on the Victorian Electoral Commission website².

Local government is the third level of government in Australia and delivers services and programs to the community that it represents. For more information about local government, visit Why Councils exists³.

² www.vec.vic.gov.au/electoral-boundaries/local-councils/port-phillip-city-council

³ www.viccouncils.asn.au/what-councils-do/why-councils-exist

Your Mayor and councillors

Each local government area is governed by a Council, made up of elected members (democratically elected councillors) and administrative staff (Council employees).

The City of Port Phillip is divided into three municipal wards, with three elected councillors representing each ward.

Councillors are elected for four-year terms. Meet your nine elected Councillors⁴, including the City of Port Phillip Mayor and Deputy Mayor.

Voting at council elections

Council elections are held every four years.

You don't have to be an Australian citizen to vote in the council elections.

If you aren't on the Victorian State Roll, you can still enrol to vote in the council elections if you own a rateable property in Port Phillip.

The next Council election will be in 2024.

Find out more information on the Victorian Electoral Commission website⁵.

What services does Council deliver?

Council delivers more than 100 programs and services to our residents, businesses and visitors, from Port Melbourne to Elwood.

Our services reach everyone in the municipality.

Some of the services we provide are:

- collecting household rubbish and recycling
- running libraries
- maintaining our beautiful beaches and parks
- childcare, immunisations and maternal child health services
- planting trees
- helping keep your pets safe.

For more information about the services that Council provides, view Council services.⁶

Interpreter services

Nearly a quarter of residents in the City of Port Phillip speak languages other than English at home. Council offers a free multilingual telephone interpreting service for Council enquiries. Please phone our language-specific service:

廣東話 (Cantonese): 03 9679 9810

普通话 (Mandarin): 03 9679 9858

Ελληνικά (Greek): 03 9679 9811

Polski (Polish): 03 9679 9812

Русский (Russian): 03 9679 9813

Other languages: 03 9679 9814

The interpreter will put a caller in touch with our call centre, so we can respond to your enquiries.

Staff at our customer service counters at St Kilda and Port Melbourne town halls can also access an interpreter for in-person enquiries.

Translation services

You can write to Council in your native language and we will translate the document.

Getting a Tax File Number

A tax file number (TFN) is your personal reference number in the Australian tax and superannuation systems.

It is free to apply for a TFN.

You don't have to have a TFN, but without one you pay more tax. You also won't be able to apply for government benefits, lodge your tax return electronically or get an Australian business number (ABN). Find out more on the Australian Tax Office website¹⁹.

Overseas qualifications recognition

The Victorian Overseas Qualification Unit offers free and confidential assessment services to have your qualifications recognised in Australia²⁰ and help secure work. This service is free for those permanently living in Victoria.

Overseas-qualified Professionals Program

The Overseas-qualified Professionals Program²¹ is also offered at Melbourne Polytechnic and it is a unique employment-focussed program which introduces overseas-qualified professionals to the Australian labour market.

Transport Workers Union Victoria / Tasmania

Anyone who works in Australia can join a union. A union is an organisation of workers or employees who have come together to achieve common goals, for example higher pay and better working conditions.

It is optional to join a union and there is a membership fee involved. Which union you should join depends on what sort of work you do and where your workplace is located. The Transport Workers Union Victoria / Tasmania represents members who work in the private transport industry, including food delivery and ride share workers.
